Prosperity
Shown in Glendale by Increase of Subdivisions

HERE never was a time when Glendale looked as prosperous as it does at this time.

That the prosperity is to continue is little doubted. The fact that some of the largest subdivisions are now opening up subdivisions tells us that our confidence is shared by others.

The fact that during the past year the number of subdivisions opened up in Glendale was more by over 100 per cent than any two other cities in the county, with Los Angeles excluded.

THERE were 85 subdivisions put on the market during the past year in Glendale. Alhambra came second in the county with 22, Burbank third with 19 and Pasadena fourth with 17. The fact that we stood second to Los Angeles in subdivisions opened up speaks well, but the fact that right now there are 52 subdivisions being offered the public is still better. Where could a homebuyer find a more ideal setting for his home than can be found in Glendale, and at a price considerably under that asked in cities or suburbs located as near to Los Angeles?

OUR proximity to Los Angeles is in our favor, for we can appeal to the individual, who desires to live in a large city, as well as those who prefer a smaller one.

There are so many business buildings being planned right now that it is difficult to keep them in mind. In a recent issue of our paper we predicted that Glendale would have a population of 60,000 in five years, but if the present prosperity continues, which we are confident will be true, our figures will have to be revised.

The State Assembly passing a bill permitting Glendale to construct an outlet sewer to the sea, through Los Angeles, is another step towards the obtaining of a sewer. With a sewer near to consumption the next step will be a reduction in street car fares and then Glendale will have a boom that will be the talk of the country.

THE automobile parking situation is getting to be quite a problem. It can never be lessened, as far as parking at the curbs is concerned, but there is a way of relieving it to some extent. When you park your car, do so with a thought for others. Park it at the proper angle and as close to other cars as is possible.

QUITE a lot of space is being wasted through thoughtlessness. The other evening, we checked four spaces in one block which were too small to hold a car—one on account of the car next to space not being parked at the proper angle and the others on account of cars not close enough to the car on the other side.

WE think it would be well for the police department to renew the parking lines on the pavement, as they are getting faint, and maybe those thoughtless drivers may take a hint. A word to the wise is sufficient.

BLACKS ROCK CASE

KEEPS POLICE ON RUN TO L. A.

The efficiency of the judicial procedure of modern times is shown in the case of H. P. Blackstock, who was arrested in Glendale on June 24 for reckless driving. The case, which is being tried in the court of Judge Schenk in Los Angeles, has been continued twelve times, according to a statement made by a member of the Glendale police department this morning. These continuances have necessitated eight trips by Glendale officers to Los Angeles, each time taking the greater part of a half day. In the other four instances the local department was notified of the continuances before officers started to the city.

BOYS DISAPPEAR
[By Associated Press]
SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., March 27.—Belief that Dickey Jensen, 6, and Dean Meecham, 4, missing since last Saturday, were kidnapped, is growing, police officers said today. A gypsy band which encamped near San Bernardino last week was also being sought.

ANNEXATION QUESTION BRINGS OUT BIG VOTE TO EAGLE ROCK POLLS

By Ten o'Clock Approximately Seven Hundred Votes Out of a Possible Two Thousand Are Cast by Partisans of Both Sides

FEELING RUNS HIGH IN ALL PARTS OF CITY

Banners Flutter, Children Megaphone Derisive Calls, Women Electioneering Are Reprimanded and An Old Pioneer Registers His Vote

A report of all the polling places at 10 o'clock showed that many were anxious to get their votes in early in the annexation election here today. Many of these were at the polls when they opened before 6 o'clock. The commuters who have early trains to catch into Los Angeles turned out en masse for the early hours.

At 10 o'clock 704 votes had been cast at the five polling stations out of the possible 2000. A majority of "Vote Yes for Consolidation" banners were seen. Children, provided with megaphones flocked about the streets, shouting indiscriminately for either side, regardless of the instructions of those who presented them with the noise-makers.

The following individual reports have come in from the polling places—At 9 o'clock: City hall 194, East end district 136, 131 South Central 159, Library 133, Central school 100. Although this shows but a total of 504, it is estimated that early in the afternoon at least 1500 votes will have been cast.

The polls opened at 6 o'clock this morning, and by 10 o'clock a large crowd of the interested citizens had already been out to cast their ballots. Some of them rest confident that their vote was cast for the side which is bound to be victorious, and others are hopeful, and more than interested in the counting of the votes tonight. Both sides have been satisfied with the showing of supporters that they have, through their advertising mediums, and for that reason it is hard to prophecy what the outcome of the election will be. Property owners at large, and realty dealers seem hopeful for annexation. Many citizens base their decision upon the fact that they have children, while still others look at it from the points brought out by speakers on the water question, considering the health of their children as well as themselves.

And no matter how assured either faction is of victory, there is still a deep undercurrent of curiosity, and many people will anxiously await the "returns" tonight. It is stated that the votes will be counted by about 10 o'clock.

A great many of the people who had not taken any stand as to annexation today covered their automobiles with signs. Some of these were very amusing. One of the signs seen this morning read "No More Buses On Our Water."

C. W. Commons had a slight accident with an unknown motorist, during the consolidation parade this morning at 7:30. As the parade made the "merry-go-round" turn at Colorado and Central, the motorist, coming down Colorado, attempted to break through the

CREDIT MEN HAVE BIG ATTENDANCE AT LUNCHEON

Visitors From Lankershim Tell of Advantages of Organization

The attendance at the Glendale Credit Association's luncheon yesterday noon at the Glen Inn was the largest of any meeting held in many weeks. Several members of the new credit men's association recently formed at Lankershim were present and made short talks, emphasizing the importance of such associations and pledging support to the local association in its endeavor to aid the business men.

W. T. Gilliam, the awning merchant, was received into the association, and several guests were introduced.

W. P. Potter, although confined in the Glendale sanitarium, where he was operated upon for appendicitis, sent a jovial letter which was read by President Emery. Postal cards were sent Mr. Potter by each member of the association, and his rapid recovery is now assured.

The association was delightfully entertained by Miss Oliver, who gave several vocal numbers, accompanied on the piano by Miss Williams.

The local bus proposition was again brought up, but the matter was referred to the committee of which Er N. Radke is chairman.

AL MALAIKAH TO MAKE PILGRIMAGE TO WASHINGTON

Members of the order of Al MalaiKAH Temple of the Mystic Shrine, who live in Glendale, and they number a good many, are being invited to join the pilgrimage to Washington and to "park their camels with Uncle Sam."

The train will leave Los Angeles May 31 at 2 p. m. via the Union Pacific, Chicago and Northwestern, and Baltimore & Ohio, and reservations have already been made sufficient to fill eight Pullmans.

The fare for the round trip on a 90-day ticket is $141.66, returning via any route, and the Washington committee has already made reservations for the Los Angeles delegation.

Noble C. P. Ensign of the U. P. system, has been appointed master of transportation and can be reached in regard to reservations by calling at 221 South Broadway, Los Angeles, or telephoning Main 8908.

CITY TAX ILLEGAL, IS CLAIM

Miss Marr Says Too Much Territory Included in District 6

HAS NEW COMPLAINT

Declares Levied on Land Not Within Its Boundaries

A supplement complaint with regard to the establishments of Municipal Improvement District No. 6 by the city of Glendale has been filed in Superior court by Winifred F. Marr, who claims that all of the district effected is not within the city of Glendale. A communication stating that this action had been taken was received by the city council Monday night. This was referred to the city attorney.

Miss Marr's letter to the council reads as follows: "On March 1, 1923, you referred a communication from me to the city attorney for report. You fixed no limit to the time the city attorney was to take to make the report and according to your minutes you have not asked for nor received any such report."

"I have, therefore, filed a supplementary complaint in the case of Marr versus the Southern California Gas company, et al., No. 112,949, in the Superior court, in which I allege that although I have pointed out to you the facts which show that the so-called Municipal Improvement District No. 6, is partly without the city of Glendale, and that you have no power to call an election in the district in which you undertook to call one in your so-called ordinance, No. 599, and that you could not and did not tax taxable property in the whole of such district and cannot in the future, you refuse to recognize these facts and are pretending on the contrary, for the purpose of deceiving and coercing some of the taxpayers in that so-called district into paying an invalid tax, that you may obtain the contribution of money to be used for an unlawful purpose. Your attorney has until March 28 to reply."

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—Short circuited wires to an electric motor in a planing mill was given by employees as the cause of the fire which shortly before noon today swept over the lumber yard of the American Lumber company, 7300 Santa Monica boulevard, causing damage which was estimated to be in excess of $25,000 and endangering the old King Vidor studios.

CURFEW SIREN GOES OFF ON LONG TOOT

The curfew siren went on a "toot" last night.

When the time came last night for the sounding of the curfew siren, the siren, which is a small bell, pulled the siren sired. When Nunn released the string the siren continued to siren.

Calls for help were simultaneously sent to the police, the fire department, the emergency hospital, the chamber of commerce, the mayor, the W. C. T. U., but the siren kept right on screaming. It was on one of those old-time, pre-Volstead "toots."

Finally the jeweler and the blacksmith were called and together they succeeded in dismantling the critter and cutting out its "toots" whereupon Glendale sank back upon its pillow and snored merrily on.

CHARLIE DICE IS RECOVERING SLOWLY

Word was received today that Charlie Dice, formerly of the Glendale police department, now of the county motor cop force, is resting as comfortably as possible at the county hospital in Los Angeles. Charlie was run down by an automobile in Santa Monica several days ago and several bones broken. He will be confined to the hospital for about four months, it is claimed.

BREWSTER BREAKS WRIST

While entering his home at 213 South Glendale avenue shortly after dark last night Balliff Brewster of the Glendale police department, fell and broke one of more bones in his wrist. The exact extent of the injury will not be known until an x-ray taken today at the Glendale Sanitarium. The injury, it is believed, will not keep Mr. Brewster from attending to his usual duties.

FIRE IN DAIRY

Fire broke out at the Connors' Dairy, in the Grandview district, early last night, but before much damage could be done the conflagration was extinguished by the fire laddies of Glendale.

Expert city planners will submit plans. The meeting will be attended by representatives of every civic organization in this city.

SUCCESS OF EASTER SUNRISE SERVICES DEPENDS ON YOU!

If you sing, no matter how much or how little, show your co-operation with the efforts being made by Glendale Community Service to make the Easter Sunrise services a big success by turning out tomorrow night at 7:45 o'clock for chorus rehearsal at the high school auditorium. According to A. L. Baird, chairman of the music committee, which has charge of the details of the program, everything possible has been done to make the Easter services a big success, and it is now up to the people to help in the chorus song numbers and attend the rehearsal Wednesday night.

Noon-Day Union Meetings Open With Success

If the attendance at the first of this week's noonday religious services held in the Glendale theatre through the courtesy of Manager William A. Howe, is any criterion, the series will be a success, as more than 250 persons were present and joined heartily in the singing, then listened closely to the sermon by Dr. Edgar Faye Daugherty of the First Christian church, Los Angeles.

ASA HALL ISSUES A STATEMENT

Councilmanic Candidate Declares His Platform for Election

WOULD BE EFFICIENT

Recites Long Career in Corporation Management and Affairs

Asa Hall, 636 North Louise street, who is a candidate for a place on the city council at the election which will be held on April 10, makes the following statement as some of the most vital issues that face the city at this time:

"To the electors of the city of Glendale:

"I am a candidate for the office of Councilman to be voted for at the coming election on April 10. Have been a resident of Southern California for nearly 34 years, having resided in and around the city of Los Angeles during all that time. Have been a taxpayer in Glendale for over 12 years. Am one of the founders of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, which since its inception has been the salvation of the orange and lemon industry of Southern California. For a number of years was president of the Glendora Citrus association at Glendora, as also a director of the A. C. G. Fruit Exchange at Azusa.

From 1907 to March, 1921, when I tendered my resignation and came to Glendale to live, was the head bookkeeper and accountant of the city auditor's office in Los Angeles, preparing tax ordinances and making money, handling all the bonded indebtedness, compiling and issuing the auditor's annual report each year, which the department of commerce at Washington, D. C., as well as the National Association of Accountants and Controllers designated held up as the model report of all cities in our country.

"I am an ardent believer in efficiency in all municipal matters, but I want it to be efficiency in fact, not in name only. There is no reason why Glendale should not have one of the most economical as well as efficient strictly business administrations possible, and if I am elected to office, I pledge you my honor that I will do everything I possibly can at all times to accomplish that end. I am in favor of a complete and efficient sewer system, and no time should be lost in arriving at a definite decision as to what the system should be, so that construction work could proceed, as it will very materially add to our future growth as a city. Having no business interests to take up my time, am in a position to devote my best attention to the various interests of our fair city, and if you think I will be the right man in the right place, shall be pleased to have you cast your vote in my favor.

500 ATTEND PRE-EASTER MEETING IN GLENDAL THEATER AT NOON HOUR

Ministerial Association Well Pleased With Response to Effort of the United Churches of the City to Prepare for April 1

DR. EDGAR FAYE DAUGHERTY IS IMPRESSIVE

Speaks of "Jesus Christ, the Truth," and Lays Before the Large Audience a Beautiful Picture in Most Attractive Diction

With an attendance at the opening service of about 500 people, the noonday pre-Easter meetings at the Glendale theatre began very auspiciously yesterday. The Ministerial association was well pleased with the response, since the noon hour is not a time when men and women can best be away from other duties.

Rev. Louis Tinning, president of the association, presided. The audience was a little slow in gathering, but by the time Paul Carson had finished his beautiful prelude at the organ, all were in readiness for the singing and prayer, which was offered by Rev. Clifford Cole. A trio, from the Central Christian Church sang very effectively "O, Blest Redeemer," by Marchetti, accompanied by Mr. Carson. The singers were Mesdames Floyd Mercer, E. L. Smith and F. W. Pigg.

Dr. Edgar Faye Daugherty, pastor of the First Christian Church of Los Angeles, gave a half hour sermon, replete with impressive illustrations and attractive diction. He is a genius in the use of the English language and without gesture or trick of oratory puts over his message in a most unusual manner. He spoke on "Jesus Christ, the Truth," and in epigrams such as "to be a slave to the truth is to be a free man," he laid before the audience the exhortation to follow after truth. He spoke of Jesus of Nazareth walking the earth and dying on Calvary that the human race might be free.

Tomorrow, Dr. Frank Dyer of the Wilshire Congregational Church, whose successful work in connection with that organization of only a few months has resulted in the establishment of a great congregation, will preach.

PARK FUND IS INCREASED BY $10,000

Transfers Sum From General Budget Fund to Be Refunded Later

Ten thousand dollars was ordered transferred from the general budget fund to the park and recreation fund, this to be repaid when the necessary tax money comes in. This was decided at the meeting of the city council last night.

W. J. Kern was awarded the contract for the improvement of Mountain street by the Glendale city council last night.

An ordinance was adopted establishing the grade on a portion of Pacific Avenue.

An ordinance was adopted ordering the vacating of a portion of Kenneth road from Grand View to Sonora. A new section of this road has been decided to the city.

A bill for $181.60 for awnings for the city hall was allowed and ordered paid.

The city manager was authorized to vote in proxy for the city at the stockholders' meeting of the Verdugo Canyon water company, to be held on April 3 at 1 o'clock.

The F. P. Newport company petitioned that Verdugo road from Opechee Way to Giorietta avenue be changed from business to residential property. On motion of Councilman Lapham the proceedings for this step were ordered taken.

Cornwell & Henderson asked that a reassessment for the work on Doran street, from Colorado to San Fernando road, be made. A resolution ordering this was adopted.

P. E. FARE TO BE DISCUSSED

General Passenger Agent Pontus of the Pacific Electric railway has indicated that he will arrange to meet some time tomorrow the special committee appointed by the chamber of commerce to negotiate with him in regard to lower fares and improved service for the people of Glendale. The committee consists of Peter Perry, chairman, Thomas D. Watson and Attorney W. E. Evans.

JERRY JETER TO OPEN REVIVAL TONIGHT

Big Tabernacle at East Broadway and Cedar Is Ready

The Jerry Jeter campaign of evangelistic services will open tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the tabernacle which has been built at East Broadway and Cedar street. These meetings will run for four weeks and will be held every afternoon and evening at 2:30 and 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Jeter is known as one of the greatest cartoonists in America and is also gifted with the talent of being able to produce an oil painting before his audience in nine minutes.

Mr. Jeter is everybody's evangelist and everyone, regardless of sect or creed is invited to attend these services, whether they be residents of Glendale, Eagle Rock, Montrose, Burbank or elsewhere.

Mrs. Jeter, who will have charge of the afternoon services, is one of the leading women trombonists on the platform and is also a great Bible teacher. The afternoon meetings will begin at 2:30 and last just one hour.

Mr. Jeter spoke to upwards of 5000 people at Phoenix and to over 3000 at Stockton and also at Santa Ana. The young people in these cities, and the aged alike, have appreciated his cartooning and paintings, as well as the messages he brought to them.

K. C. CONVENTION TO ASSEMBLE AT SAN FRANCISCO

Twenty-five Thousand to Meet in Bay City Beginning May 7

[By Associated Press]
SACRAMENTO, Mar. 27.—Representatives of 25,000 Knights of Columbus in California will come to San Francisco for the twentieth annual state convention of the order, to be held here May 7, 8 and 9. District Deputy Frank E. Michel, Jr., heads the general convention committee, which is making preparations to entertain more than 5000 visitors during the convocation. Visiting delegations will reach Sacramento as early as Saturday, May 5, the entertainment program officially opening on that date.

A grand reception and ball on Saturday night, May 5, will be followed by the religious exercises of Sunday May 6. Special trains and boats are expected here from all parts of the state on Sunday morning, bringing thousands of visitors, many of whom will remain for the convention sessions. Following a street parade of the Knights of Columbus and various other Catholic societies, Solemn High Mass is to be celebrated at the Cathedral, by Right Rev. P. J. Keane, Bishop of Sacramento diocese. In the afternoon a large class of candidates will be initiated into the second and third degrees of Columbianism; and a banquet in the evening will conclude the day's program. The convention proper will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with elections of state officers for the new year taking place on Wednesday.

Convention chairman Michel has officially invited the civic and state officials here to be present at the opening of the convention, which will be one of the most important business convocations ever held in the state of California, by the Knights of Columbus, due to the great number of resolutions and measures to be taken up at the meetings.

GILLIAM INCREASES MANUFACTURING PLANT

Because of increased business W. T. Gilliam, manufacturer of awnings, tents and camp equipment, whose factory is at 210 East Broadway, which is also the home of L. C. Davis' linoleum and shade works, an annex has been added to South Maryland avenue. Mr. Gilliam only recently came to Glendale and is more than pleased with the large demand for this kind of equipment. He states that the factory will be moved to the annex this week and the present location on East Broadway will be retained as a show room, where a fine line of tents and awnings will be on display.

With the new machinery being installed it will be possible to turn out high grade work at short notice. Two very powerful tent-making machines have been received from the east and are being installed, in addition to a complete bench of pipe-fitting machines, etc.

DROWNED PET REVIVED AFTER LONG EFFORT

Toy Rinehart who was dead, is living, and Twila Rinehart, to whom Toy was very dear, has experienced all the transitions from the grief of bereavement to the joy of his restoration.

Toy was drowned, but before committing his cold form to mother earth, Twila insisted upon some effort to revive him. She is a chirp-practic student and here, if ever, seemed the time to call into service all the healing arts she knew. Artificial respiration was attempted for three hours. The first sign of life was a movement of Toy's slight movement, but enough to send a thrill of hope to the heart of Twila, who redoubled her efforts. Toy was soon himself again baring weakness from which he has since recovered. His cunning ways and endearments since his return to life have more than compensated Twila. Toy is a French poodle who weighs but a pound and a half, but it is a very precious pound of flesh. To empty his lungs of water Twila had to roll him on a tumbler in lieu of a barrel.

JOLLY LITTLE BEAR AT MILLER FUR CO.

Children who are fond of the story of the three bears and Little Red Riding Hood, and who perhaps wonder how "the little bear" looked, should be taken to the sales room of the Mills Fur company, 133 South Brand to see the jolly, laughing little black bear cub stand on his hind legs beside a post to advertise the business of his owner. From the viewpoint of juvenile youth he is the most interesting figure on the street and the adults are not proof against his attractions.

Mr. Mills has been in the fur business for nearly five years and for part of that time was associated with Colburn of Los Angeles.

At this season of the year he makes special rates on furs and for cleaning and remodelling them. Whoever fails to remember his number should look for the little black bear.

ROSE CITY MAY LOSE ITS TITLE

[By Associated Press]
PORTLAND, Ore., March 27.—Famed as the "Rose City," Portland is in danger of losing that title unless greater activity is taken by the people in cultivation of the flower, according to organizations which have started a movement to stimulate interest. The chamber of commerce and the Portland Parent-Teacher association are back of this effort, one of the first steps being the formation of rose clubs among children. School pupils will be furnished plants, and prizes will be awarded for the best results obtained.

AMATEUR BOXER WHO REFUSED TO BE PRO.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, Mar. 27.—Epeaking of Eddie Eagen, light heavyweight champion of the Olympic games, captain of the Yale boxing team and later a member of the Harvard team, who is now at Oxford, "Sporting Life" (London) says of an inter-collegiate tournament in which he boxed recently:

"Eagen, Oxford, as a matter of course, won at catchweights and we suppose we shall have to hope in vain for an amateur capable of making him give of his best."

Righto, John, and more than righto! It will take the best pro you have in the fighting ranks to make him extend himself!

Eagen is an unusual type of young man in a day when a young man with any kind of talent in his fists rushes into the professional prize ring for what little fame and what big money he can acquire.

Eagen has all kinds of natural talent. Veteran old managers have been after him for four years, but he scorned all offers to fight for money.

In explaining his rather unusual ideas, he told the writer in Anti-weekly during the Olympic games: "I know I could make a lot of money in the prize ring. Perhaps I could become a champion and acquire whatever fame might be understood to attend such a conquest, but all the money and all the glory I might attain would not compensate me for the pang that would be mine if I ever heard one of my children taunted with—your father's a prize fighter."

Eagen talks just that way and in his private life he carries out the same high ideals.

Eagen knows that some stigma is attached even to an amateur boxer. He learned it at Yale and it cost him the realization of one of his fondest ambitions.

Eddie was crazy about football. When he was over with the American Olympic team in 1920 at Antwerp he dashed home just as soon as the boxing finals had been completed. Most of the other boys were taking what trips around Europe they could afford.

"I want to be at Yale when the football squad reports, I'm going to try hard, but I don't believe I can make the team."

He wouldn't give a reason, but it was heard later from another source.

The powers that be at Yale didn't want a boxer on the varsity team, although he was one of the fastest men on the team and a most promising end or halfback.

STATIC ELECTRICITY CAUSES ACCIDENTS

Every one at some time or other has had the experience of producing static electricity by walking across a thickly carpeted floor on a dry cold day and then touching a radiator. The same effect has been obtained by vigorously stroking a cat when the hair is dry.

The spark so simply generated, under other conditions may constitute a very serious source of industrial accidents, says the United States Bureau of Standards.

"The variety of circumstances under which static electricity is produced is quite surprising, and trouble from it has been found in threshing machines, cotton gins, gasoline distilleries, explosives manufacturing, flour mills, and dry cleaning establishments."

The bureau asserts that appreciable charges of static electricity can be produced only when the surrounding air is very dry, static troubles almost never occurring when the relative humidity is greater than 70 per cent.

One simple and effective means of combating the evil, according to the bureau, is the use of damp atmosphere, obtained, for instance, by injecting steam into the room.

Another precaution is to connect all metal parts of machinery by substantial wires so that no difference in electrical potential can be produced between the various parts.

The National Association of Dyers and Cleaners is undertaking an active campaign to eliminate fires from this source.

Perhaps it is cruel to print this in America. Well, anyhow, there is in London, near Waterloo station, a public house, its window advertising travelers may note the following placard:

"We have on hand some ten-year-old Scotch. It is rich and oily. A drink of it rolls down your throat, and as it rolls it says: 'Christmas, Christmas, Christmas!'"

DIPHTHERIA'S CONQUEST

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

Dr. Bela Shick has been visiting the United States. The newspapers have been giving much space to his doings. And rightly. For Dr. Shick, Viennese deviser of the so-called Shick test for diphtheria susceptibility, is certain to hold a lasting place as one of the really great among medical discoverers.

It is not too much to say that, thanks to him, that dire scourge of childhood, diphtheria, is in process of being conquered. Consider, if you please, as a single striking bit of evidence, a report issued by the New York state department of health almost coincidental with Dr. Shick's arrival.

This report has received nothing like the publicity it deserves. Written by Dr. Frederick W. Sears, it details certain astonishing results obtained through Shick testing in the city of Auburn, N. Y.

Prior to the testing, diphtheria had been increasingly prevalent in Auburn, a manufacturing city with a population of 36,000. In the fall of 1921 the situation became so serious that cultures were taken from the throats of all the 700 children of a school in the section where diphtheria was most rampant. These cultures showed that no fewer than 314 of the 700 boys and girls were carriers of diphtheria germs.

With such evidence to present to the public, it was not difficult to obtain approval for a systematic effort to stamp out the disease. In February, 1922, Shick testing of thousands of school children began.

The theory underlying the Shick test is that it will unfailingly show whether the person subjected to it is or is not susceptible to diphtheria. When the reaction indicating susceptibility is obtained, the next step is to administer small doses of diphtheria toxin-antitoxin as a means of securing immunity.

Altogether, in the spring campaign of 1922, more than half of the school children of Auburn were Shick tested, or 3880 of a total school population of 7110. A positive reaction—that is, a reaction denoting susceptibility—was obtained in 2361 cases. Of these, 90 per cent received at least one immunizing dose of toxin-antitoxin.

Now let Dr. Sears himself relate the results:

"From April 1 to June 9 there was but one child of school age reported as having diphtheria in the city of Auburn, and that was a child for whom consent for testing and immunization was not given. From May 8 to June 9 no cases of diphtheria were reported in the city. From June 9 to the present time (late in the same month) two children of school age have been reported as having diphtheria, one of whom was not Shick tested or immunized and who died from the effect of the disease."

"In the second case it is quite evident that sufficient time from the date of immunizing had not elapsed to completely protect the child, but sufficient antitoxin had accumulated in the blood to protect her from the serious effects of the disease."

Nor, it appears, is it necessary to immunize an entire population in order to hold the ravages of diphtheria in check. In Health News, official publication of the New York state department of health, we find this editorial comment on the Auburn campaign:

"For all practical purposes a disease like diphtheria can be controlled in a community even without securing 100 per cent immunity, but already it is more than probable that the 64 per cent of non-immunes in the school population has been cut in half. When the work is done the chances are that diphtheria will be eliminated as a serious proposition in the enlightened city of Auburn."

Surely there is a valuable lesson here for other communities. And surely it is not surprising that Dr. Shick has everywhere been received with acclaim.

POPULATION

Henry Pratt Fairchild, writing in the Yale Review, says that the world's population in the 114 years that ended in 1914 more than doubled. It increased from 700 millions to 1,649 million. In the five years from 1906 to 1911, it increased at the rate of doubling every sixty years.

Mr. Fairchild asserts that in 10,000 years, which, by the way, is a short period in the history of the world, after filling the standing room of the earth's surface by allowing each person one and one-half square feet on which to stand, there would be still 100 quintillion times 60,750 trillion individuals left over, with no standing room.

In the United States at the rate of increase from 1906-1911, there

ROTARY-RELIGION DO NOT CONFLICT

—PRESIDENT HAVENS.

[By Associated Press]
TACOMA, Wash., March 27.—Raymond M. Havens of Kansas City, Mo., president of the Rotary International, at the Rotary district conference here today stated that Rotary International does not conflict with religion, "for it deals with this present life only." He said: "International Rotary allows no retreat; it does not recognize hermit loneliness. It is free from fatalism and predestination of classic-ethics. To men of honor it is not easy. The battle of the spirit must be fought among our fellows. We Rotarians do not want to be easy. We must serve our fellows to prove the worthiness of ourselves."

"We all realize, as Rotarians, that poor, weak mortal man can plant his feet firmly upon this earth, but he can also lift his eyes to the stars and grow more constantly in stature. So is our opportunity to grow in the life of Rotary; thinking fundamentally, we can conceive internationally. It will give us an opportunity to grow within ourselves, seeing things in an entirely different light than we ever saw them before. We sometimes think that our puny efforts do not move harmony, and do not accomplish results that we desire; but constant practice, even in a small way, will grow to proportions and make a realization of Rotary ethics throughout the world."

"This statement that I am about to make, may not be entirely approved by you, but Rotary International is something far greater than Rotary itself; it is, therefore, the highest degree of Rotary, for it confers that consciousness of being a citizen of the world, with the vision far greater than we ordinarily have when we confine our activity to our own community and club life; that is only a part of the building of this tremendous idea of Rotary International."

There had been complaints of over-crowding, so an official was sent out to make inquiries.

Approaching one house, he knocked sharply, and the door was soon opened by the daughter of the house.

"How many people live here?" he asked.

"Nobody lives here," answered the girl. "We're only staying for a short time."

"But how many are here?" persisted the man.

"I'm here. Father's gone for a walk and mother is—"

"Stop! Stop!" exclaimed the official impatiently. "I want to know how many inmates are in this house. How many slept here last night?"

"Well, you see," was the reply, "I call again."

We believe that our advertising columns offer the best medium for presenting the message of Glendale merchants, because we reach the most people. We have editions for Eagle Rock and Burbank. Three daily newspapers with an advertising rate that is not high enough for one daily paper.

Here are the sworn statements required by the government from both Glendale Daily Papers:

THE FACTS IN A NUTSHELL:

GLENDALE DAILY PRESS 4,985

GLENDALE DAILY PRESS LEAD

But, Dear Reader, since the statements were published in October, THE GLENDALE DAILY PRESS has added 715 READERS TO ITS LIST and its circulation now exceeds the sworn statement of the second paper by 2364. Growing some in three months, you say. Well, you're right. Watch us grow during 1923. Watch the advertising columns grow. DENVER BUNCO MEN'S FATE IN JURY'S HANDS

Deliberation of 72 Hours Fails to Result in Verdict

[By Associated Press] DENVER, March 27.—The jury trying twenty alleged members of a nationally known band of confidence men was told by Judge George Dunklee, presiding, today that he expected them to reach a verdict. The jury had been deliberating 72 hours.

DENVER, Colo., March 27.—The twenty alleged confidence men charged with operating "fake stock exchanges," were said to have taken more than $500,000 from the public, and the district attorney declared he had accounted for $272,000 lost by "speculators" through the operations of the "bunco ring."

Twenty men were on trial, all of whom were indicted under blanket information by a Denver county grand jury in September, 1922. The trial started on February 5. The prosecution announced it would call about 175 witnesses, and the defense said it had about 25 witnesses.

The twenty men on trial were: John Allison, Lou Blonger, Thomas Beach, George Belcher, Walter Byland, Arthur B. Cooper, Robert B. Davis, William Dougherty, A. W. Duff, John H. Foster, J. H. French, Jack Hardaway, Louis Mshnick, Steve Olson, A. H. Potts, George Williams, W. L. Straub, George Walker, G. H. Williams and C. C. Bailey.

The district attorney charged that Lou Blonger, 70, was the head of the alleged ring. Some of the members of the alleged confidence gang have been operating continuously for 15 years in different parts of the United States, according to the district attorney's office. Before moving headquarters to Denver about five years ago, the ring operated in Atlanta, Ga., and Los Angeles, Calif., the district attorney said.

The defendants were charged in three counts with conspiracy to commit fraud through the operation of a confidence game; with general conspiracy of committing or attempting to commit crime through the operation of a confidence game, and larceny in connection with a confidence game.

A total of 33 men were arrested in raids conducted by the district attorney's office in August, 1922, but when the trial opened only 22 men were listed as defendants. Two of these jumped their bonds, leaving 20 on trial. The other 11 included several men who were turned over to federal authorities to face government charges, and one who was turned over to Los Angeles county officials. The remainder forfeited their bonds and fled.

Numerous witnesses testified in the court trial that the alleged "bunco" men had a "fake stock exchange," through which they bought and sold mythical stocks. The alleged victim always won at the start, witnesses testified, and finally, after smaller amounts had been "invested" the alleged victim "won" from $75,000 to $150,000.

However, the alleged confidence men would then demand that the investor must have cash "for credit purposes" before the large amount would be paid. One witness testified he went from Denver to England to get $25,000 in cash in order to "establish his credit." The alleged confidence men would then declare they had another "easy killing" and the $75,000 to $150,000 would be played for the "investor," plus his $25,000 in cash. Witnesses testified that at this stage of the game the market always "operated against them," and they lost their previous "profits," together with the cash they had raised "for credit purposes."

The twenty men were also charged with operating fake racing schemes involving a mythical horse, "Dineen." The operation was practically the same as the "stock market" scheme, and when the winnings had been pyramided to the point where large sums were involved, "Dineen" became an also-ran.

200 ATTENDED GRAND VIEW LIBRARY ON OPENING NIGHT

Music, Addresses and Refreshments Mark the Celebration

Nearly 200 attended the opening of the Grand View branch library Monday evening at the Grand View school and were entertained with music, speeches and readings followed by the serving of refreshments of ice cream, cake and punch, in celebration of what was a big event in that section of the city.

Alexander Mitchell, president of the Foothill Improvement association, presided and called upon little Gene Finch to read in a salute to the flag. Later in the evening the same talent child gave two readings which inspired great enthusiasm.

Following the words of greeting by Mr. Mitchell, Superintendent Richardson D. White expressed his satisfaction over the establishment of a library in connection with the school, declaring the three big factors in the education of a child are the home, the school and the library.

Oliver Spencer, president of the library board, formally presented the branch library and on behalf of the district Mr. Mitchell accepted it. Words of greeting were given by other members of the board—T. W. Preston, Mrs. Charles Temple, and Mrs. Gheuevieve D. Goss, by Charles C. Gussing of the Tropic branch, and by other members of the city library staff. Mrs. Alma Danford, city librarian, made a little address in which she referred to the Grand View branch as the grandchild of the main city library. Its establishment, she declared, is the realization of one of her dreams for the upbuilding of the library system of Glendale. She likened it to "one of the golden threads in the weaving of tapestry. Mrs. Danford introduced Miss Frost, who will be the librarian of the Grand View branch. Mayor Robinson made one of his characteristic speeches and brief talks were made by Councilmen A. H. Lapham and Clarence Kimlin, and City Manager Reeves. Mr. Finney, who was riding a bicycle at the time, the accident taking place at 10:15 o'clock Monday morning. Meehan was slightly injured and the front wheel of his bicycle was broken.

The musical part of the program included a piano solo by Miss Frances Mae Colburn, a vocal solo by Miss Alexander entitled "Home-coming," and an encore number "One in a Blue Moon." Mayor Spencer Robinson, with Mrs. Robinson at the piano, sang two numbers, and P. J. Wheldon sang "The Viking's Song."

Some charming interpretative dances were executed by little Zella Meadows, and Miss Maud Nichols, in sailor costume, gave a sailor song and dance.

AUTO ACCIDENTS ON CITY STREETS

Automobiles driven by H. W. McBird of 105 South Maryland avenue, and A. C. Weigle of Los Angeles, collided at the corner of Colorado and Brand at 9 o'clock Sunday night. No one was injured. Mr. McBird claims that the glaring headlights of the other car were responsible for the accident, according to police records.

Ray Frost, 121 1/2 South Louise street, was driving a machine that ran down T. Pat Meehan, 371 West E. E. DeRose, 1025 Winchester, at the time, the accident taking place at the corner of Central and Wilson at 10:15 o'clock Monday morning. Meehan was slightly injured and the front wheel of his bicycle was broken.

Oh Hack! Here's Another Matman Who Wants to Take Your Measurement

Lew Daro, of Los Angeles, manager of the "Unknown" caveman matman, reached for Hackenschmidt of Glendale, for his man, in a challenge issued today through the Glendale Daily Press.

"I challenge him for any amount he wants to put up," said Daro, "before a club, private or public. I am not revealing the name of my man, but I know he will beat Hack. The name of my man will be known when my challenge is accepted. That name will make them all sit up and take notice."

Daro has staged some of the big events in the wrestling world and has the big press clippings to prove that when the bout is staged it will be worth seeing.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF EAGLE ROCK CITY

REALTY BOARD IS IN FAVOR OF ANNEXATION

J. B. Brown, Chairman of Publicity, Issues Last Hour Statement

With the opening of the polls today, Eagle Rock is about evenly divided on the question of annexation. A last hour statement was issued this morning by J. B. Brown, chairman of publicity of the Eagle Rock realty board, which follows:

"The Eagle Rock realty board, at its meeting Friday evening, March 22, 1923, with the exception of one vote, went on record for consolidation with Los Angeles," said J. B. Brown, chairman of publicity of the board. "It was stated in a resolution offered by W. R. Johnston, president of the board, speaking from the floor, that any realtor or business man with a vision must necessarily see the wonderful advantages of joining the great city of Los Angeles, and sharing in her municipal facilities. It was pointed out that aside from lower taxes, better school facilities, lower gas and telephone rates, it will mean that we can share in the assured and abundant water supply which Los Angeles can offer as well as the benefit of a good sewer system."

"No city," Mr. Johnston claimed, "could reach any normal size and maintain perfect sanitary conditions without plenty of water and good drainage."

"Mr. Godfrey Edwards, state director of the Eagle Rock board, spoke at length on the history of the Eagle Rock water supply, dating back 18 years. He stated that the rapid increase in population and the abnormal demand for water will place us in a precarious condition in the very near future. He showed that no town in Southern California had the ability to obtain water from the great aqueduct system owned by Los Angeles could afford to sacrifice the same for any sentimental or selfish reasons."

"Eagle Rock, it was pointed out, has to provide for about one-quarter of a mile of 18-inch sewer line besides their local system to have one of the best sewer systems in the country. The city is well drained from all points and it was the opinion of the real estate men that by the decrease of taxes and municipal utility rates, that the value of property would materially increase."

CITY BUS LINE HEARING IS OFF

The hearing on C. D. Gulick's application for a franchise to run bus lines in the city of Glendale, which was scheduled to occur before the city council Monday night, did not take place.

City Attorney Shaw now has this matter in charge, and it is possible it will come up for hearing Thursday evening, the next regular meeting.

OCCIDENTAL HAS PLACE IN THE SUNSHINE

Places Gigantic "O" on Highest Point of College Hill

Commuters between Eagle Rock and Los Angeles have no doubt taken interest in the erection of the giant letter "O" which has been taking place on the highest point of College Hill.

The letter, which signifies Occidental College, faces east and west, and can be seen across the valley. It has been painted in the school colors, orange and black. It is constructed of redwood, 16 feet high and 12 feet wide.

For many years the student body planned to erect this monument, but last year it was decided to let the Pi Epsilon engineer build the "O" as a permanent contribution to the college. Tags were sold, and enough money raised in this way to finance the enterprise. Painted a brilliant orange, with a white black border, school colors, this monumental letter is discernible and noticeable for miles.

VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT

[By Associated Press] PASADENA, March 27.—Organization of a volunteer fire fighting organization in this city is being effected through the efforts of C. G. Dunwoody and the chamber of commerce.

CLARENCE TRYOUTS TO BE HELD ON WEDNESDAY

Tryouts for "Clarence," to be presented for the month of April, by the Eagle Rock Community Players, will take place in the auditorium of the Central School Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Many have signed notices of being on hand to vie for the honor of playing on the cast of this wholly charming play.

BELOIT TO MEET OCCIDENTAL IN DEBATE HERE

Team From Wisconsin to Battle in Music Art Building Tomorrow

Occidental will appear against Beloit College, of Beloit, Wis., on Wednesday evening, March 28, to uphold the forensic honor of the West against the East. This debate is one of the biggest events of the current year. It will take place in the Music Art Studio building, 233 South Broadway, at 8 o'clock. Every high school in a radius of 35 miles has been urged to notify all pupils of the importance of the contest.

The team of veteran debaters representing Occidental College, is one of the strongest that the school could produce. Both men, Howard Jones, and Verne Mantel, will unquestionably put up such a fight that the Beloit team will have a difficult time in barring their way to victory.

Dr. Von Kleinsmid of U. S. C. will act as chairman. The question is: "Resolved, That the U. S. Should Adopt a Cabinet Parliamentary Form of Government."

EAGLE ROCK BUILDING PERMITS

C. O. Young took out a building permit yesterday for Mrs. R. H. Haight, 704 E. Park avenue, to build a four-room house and garage at 433 Del Mar Street, and another at 708 E. Park.

Louis J. Olman, 115 S. Acacia street, was issued a permit for a six-room place at 150 N. Ellenwood Drive, estimated to cost $3,100.

F. J. Ling took out a permit for Miss Dean, 1032 Holbrook avenue, for a garage.

Little girls cry for dolls and big girls cry for dollars.

'OTHER PEOPLE'S HUSBANDS' TO BE PLAYED

To Be Given by the Eagle Rock Players on April 4-5.

"Other People's Husbands," a timely modern play dealing with the wives who have more time and interest for their clubs than for "friend husband," and the situations and perplexities that arise out of such a state of affairs, is one of the group of Community plays to be presented on April 4 and 5 in the Central school auditorium. It should prove one of the most popular of the group of three that have been chosen for presentation at this time. Margaret Penny of Pasadena is the brilliant play, and the play itself is scintillating with brisk humor and satire. It won first prize in a drama league contest, and the first time that it was produced in Pasadena occasioned a storm of applause and verbal appreciation. The cast chosen for this production is especially well balanced.

SUICIDES

American Medicine discusses suicides that seem to predominate among the medical profession.

In 1921, suicides among the professions were listed as follows: Physicians, 56; lawyers, 57; clergymen, 21; bankers, 37.

In 1909, with more meagre returns, the figures were as follows: Lawyers, 31; physicians, 31; clergymen, 3; bankers, 21.

What may have caused this kind of clergyman mortality to increase seven times, gives food for thought. Suicide mortality among lawyers increased 80 per cent; among bankers 75 per cent; among physicians 180 per cent.

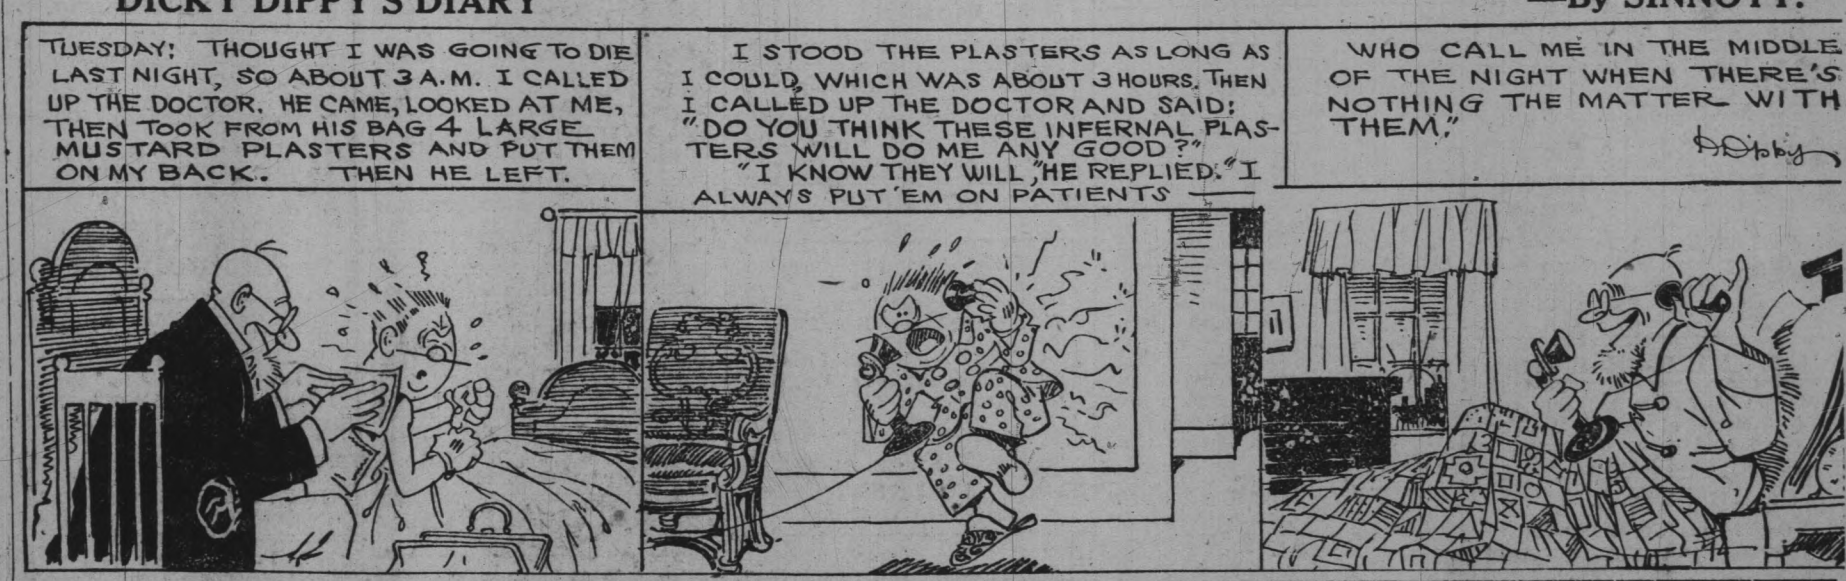

If the suicide rate of physicians in 1921 be reduced to the number of 10,000, the rate would be approximately 566 per 10,000, and the corresponding rate for lawyers would be 52 per 10,000. Therefore, the question arises as to whether there is any peculiar strain to the medical profession that does not exist in the legal profession.

Truths in Epigram

Places do not ennoble men, but men make places illustrious. — Plutarch.

ENGLISH AND AMERICAN

Remarking that Lord Robert Cecil is about to lecture in this country on behalf of the League of Nations, a writer comments that the gentleman will be listened to politely, but that nine out of ten will not understand what he says, because his "English is not American."

It is possible that something stupider than this might have been said, but it is doubtful. There are differences in the common language as spoken and written in the two countries. The English use the letter u in many words from which it is omitted here. Their "waggon" seems to Americans to have a superfluous g. Their bad men are taken to "gaol," and their taxis are lined up at the "kerb." These are minor variations, resulting in no puzzlement whatever. English writers of distinction employ verb forms not favored in the United States. For example: "I was woken" was observed in a recent British novel of high class.

English lecturers are frequent visitors. Their points of view may not be acceptable, but their methods of expression are wholly lucid. With an inflection and accent plainly indicating their local environment, there is nothing strange or jarring either in the words they use or their style of pronunciation. As to such writers as Shaw, Chesterton, Wells and Walpole, they draw upon a vocabulary that is no more English than it is American. They write for the world of culture, and they are as thoroughly understood and appreciated in America as in England.

There is a wide difference in the slang of the two countries. The gamins of New York and the gamins of London, were they to meet and discuss the social conditions of the slums, might be at a loss for a medium for purveying ideas. Among educated classes nothing approximating this lack of vehicle obtains. When Lord Robert begins to lecture to American audiences, they will catch his meaning as fully and as quickly as any English gathering.

MAKING RAIN

Scientists of the weather bureau assert that the attempt to produce rain artificially is an entirely futile undertaking. The probability is that they are right. They point to the circumstance that moisture may not be precipitated from the atmosphere unless there is moisture there. Hopeful experimenters have gone on the theory that the problem consisted in causing the moisture to fall, whereas it appears that the initial step must be in causing it to rise. If this is the case the professional rainmakers have begun at the wrong point.

There hardly could be found a record of any human activity more ancient than that seeking to propitiate the rain gods. Peoples so remote in history that little save tradition is to be told of them, have left evidences of their efforts to win rain through elaborate ceremonial. Later it became the habit of agriculturists to sacrifice a certain portion of the crop as an appeal for abundant rains for the next season. Sometimes the sacrifices were more than this comparatively innocuous form, slaves being the victims. Among certain peoples a young man or woman would be killed, and the blood sprinkled hopefully upon arid fields. Afterwards grain bound into the semblance of mortal shape, and fully clad, was substituted for the living; thus civilization was advancing.

Indian tribes always have had their rain makers, who being wise as to the seasons, often seemed to be successful. They were not even in a crude sense scientific, but depended upon weird incantations, and the painting of their faces. However, it is likely that they did as much to stimulate rainfall, as has been accomplished since. The only way as yet assured for getting greater benefit from the clouds is to conserve the supply as released.

AN INSOLENT RESOLUTION

The assembly did well in declining to hear a resolution protesting against the appearance of Rear Admiral Sims as a speaker at the University of California. The introduction of the resolution was a piece of insolence. Not only was the resolution an insult to an admirable American, whose long record of public service is without flaw, but it was the attempt of the unlettered to dictate to the regents of a great educational institution.

Outcry against Sims has come solely from professional hatred of England. There are various pretexts for entertaining such hatred. If an individual chooses to cherish distaste for Great Britain, that is his business, but his unworthy emotions do not concern the people of this state. Let him nourish them in silence, that the ill-mannered disporting of his political creed may not disturb the peace. The resolutions may be ascribed in a general way to meanness of spirit, and in more specific fashion to certain small fry of turgid partisan waters.

Admiral Sims in the war operated with great success in conjunction with the British fleet. Each element of the coalition naval forces had every reason to respect the other, and took the liberty of doing so. As well might a red rag have been waved before a bull. The idea that Americans and English could fraternize, even though fighting in common cause, was contemplated with much indignation by the contingent that, later, sought to express itself in a set of stupid and impertinent resolutions.

SIGNIFICANT OPPOSITION

The state senate passed the three-fourths jury bill by two-thirds majority. The nature of this measure is generally understood. It permits a jury verdict to be reached by nine members. No doubt is felt but that it will expedite court procedure, without in any manner impairing justice. On the contrary it must be promotive of justice, which so many times has been thwarted by one or more stupid or correct jurors.

It is significant that opposition to the measure in the senate centered in a group of criminal lawyers. These gentlemen may not be typical of the class of criminal lawyers who, more than anything else have made the change necessary. Still, not meaning any aspersion on them personally, it must be admitted that they are in bad company. The criminal lawyer often earns such reputation, that for an accused individual to seek his services, is a confession of guilt, as well as a proclamation of defiance. The notorious among lawyers of this class depend much on controlling a fraction of the jury. The best that they hope for is disagreement. This means another trial, or it means ultimately a mistrial. In either case it results in delay, and delay is valuable to a guilty defendant. Delay, wholly unreasonable, causes the jails to be crowded, the dockets overwhelmed, and the innocent to wait weary months for the chance of vindication.

The three-fourths jury system would mean the speeding up of the machinery of the courts, and it would permit the court to arrive at such conclusion as warranted by the evidence. This at present they often are unable to do, particularly in cases where there is assurance of the guilt of the accused.

HABIT AS A TRAITOR

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

The chap who brought his children up on the admonition, "Be sure your sins find you out," will probably be amazed to learn that there is now ample scientific proof that sins become habitual, and that scientists in Washington, D. C., have evolved methods for detecting mental habits with such accuracy that a crime, say forgery, duplication of warehouse receipts or other documentary evidence may be made to yield up to investigators the identity of the criminal quite as effectively as a photograph.

It seems that our boasted reasoning power is largely habit and not individual habit at that. Instead it is family habit, community habit—and not in Russia alone—neighborhood habit, church habit, political party habit and social circle habit.

Independent thinking is rare indeed; but in the light of the latest scientific discoveries about the workings of the human mind it is probable that the criminal classes will soon turn their attention to some method of cultivating independent habits of thought. If they don't the police will round them up wholesale and land them behind the bars.

Take the use of numbers as an example of routine thinking. We all without knowing it prefer to use certain figures. They may be the figures of some favorite date, say our own birthday, the birthday of some loved one, the figures that go into the make-up of our telephone or our house number. No matter, what counts is that any one faking a set of figures will almost certainly set down the figures he prefers, though unconsciously, and various combinations of them.

It is the same with words, phrases, sayings. We select such things much as we choose a group of friends, but we select them unconsciously and so lay ourselves open to betrayal by them. In the same way it has been found that judges, because they have preferences in figures, are likely to sentence criminals to serve sentences not according with the gravity of the crime, but his honor's personal preferences in numerals.

For example, how often does a judge sentence a man to six, four or eight years? Look over the court news and see.

It's 5, 10, 15 or 20 years in most criminal cases, just as it is $30 or 30 days in most police court cases. Mental habits, no more, just as it is mental habits that make us banalize on our favorite social bugaboo or the favorite bugaboo of our circle or clique.

Original creatures? Not much; we are parrots; but we are only now beginning to discover the interesting fact.

Mental habits betray their devotees, the latest and most interesting example of such betrayal being that of a Frenchman living in Constantinople. He wrote a letter to his sweetheart inciting railroad tickets for her to join him and, through mental habit, directed it to his wife.

A duel ensued between the women, but nobody got hurt except the Frenchman.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

A MOST UNUSUAL ATTITUDE (Find the error in this article)

Robert Vogel writes that his secretary does not want collections made. This is a most unusual attitude on the part of an employee of a business house, especially when her superior claims that "the extra drive should not stop the collections from coming in as soon as possible."

Mr. Vogel dictated a letter, and one of the sentences therein, as typed by his secretary, was as follows: "I do not want this drive to effect the collections for any of the preceding weeks in March."

"My contention is that affect is the word to be used in the sentence," writes Mr. Vogel.

When the secretary typewrote, "I do not want this drive to effect the collections," she was saying that it was not desirable that the collections should be made, for such is the meaning of effect. Affect means to act upon; influence; change.

Therefore, what Mr. Vogel wanted written was, "I do not want this drive to affect (act upon or change) the collections," for if it had, the collections would have fallen off.

If one effects collections, collections are made successfully; if one does not want collections effected, no collections will be made. If one does not want collections affected, they will continue to come in as usual.

The Error when her superior claims that "the extra drive should not stop the collections."

Right: when her superior asserts that "the extra drive should not stop the collections."

Vocabulary "These natural and apparently adequate means all failing, what will convince them?" queried Abraham Lincoln in "The Cooper Institute Address."

Lincoln meant that the means seemed adequate; were adequate as far as could be told. If he had used the word evidently instead of apparently, he would have been saying that the adequateness of the means was manifest, obvious, or clearly perceptible.

Queries A. H. of Chicago desires to know whether "in" or "at" is proper in the following sentence: "It is improbable that an agent (in or at) a city of 5,000 population would not know the name of his customer." There is no question that the right word is in.

THE LISTENING POST

By JAMES W. FOLEY

Here is the day. Beginning at the dawn. Lasting until the twilight and dusk. Plenty of time for work.

Plenty of time for play. Plenty of time for friendliness. What are you going to do with it?

Are you going to put a lot of good work into it? Buckle to the job and get something done? Are you going to feel that you have advanced yourself a little?

Made yourself a little more worth while in the world? Or are you just going to let the day drift by as it will?

Kill time, as the saying is? Watch the clock? What is your notion of life anyway?

It's a pretty good thing sometimes to get your bearings? What are you here for? Just to eat and sleep and be entertained? Or is there something else in life aside from these three things?

If you are a young man or woman starting out in life, what notion do you have of it? Is it a place to fear? Is it a thing to be wondered at? Is it something to be dreaded? Is it a place to get the most material wealth you can?

Or is it a place to work in with spirit, play in with gladness and live in with squareness and friendliness?

At the first you may not ask yourself these questions.

What do you intend to do with all these things? Sit down some time and think it out. Will you drive or drift? It's yours to say.

They do not always occur to youth. But after you have been in life ten or fifteen or twenty years you will be watching the compass.

Looking to see where your ship is going. Taking a look through the cargo. And perhaps wondering what port you will reach.

Life is bigger than business of course. Business is to sustain life. Life is not to sustain business.

Religion and law and medicine and philosophy and the arts and sciences are to sustain life and make it bigger and healthier and happier.

Life is the big thing after all. And you have only one. When it becomes old and a bit shopworn and faded and you cannot take it back to the weaver and tell him to give you another life.

But you can freshen it and brighten it and mend up the worn places any time you choose. It is much with you.

So what is your notion of life? It is a pretty good plan to get your course charted out while you can. Before you get too far on the way out to sea.

Here's the day. Here's your job. Here's your friend. Here's your chance. Here's your world. Because it is just as much yours as any one's else.

What do you intend to do with all these things? Sit down some time and think it out. Will you drive or drift? It's yours to say.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The story is told of a newly wedded couple who live on 50 cents a day for food, and have three adequate and satisfying meals.

The fault to be found with the story is that it could not be true. It is not proved even by the picture of the happy pair, enjoying one of their typical meals. The menu is given thus: "Asparagus, tomato salad, peas, celery, strawberries, whole wheat bread and butter."

Analysis of that repast, and a comparison with current prices, demonstrates the lack of basis for their assertions. For example, the housewife now pays 40 cents for a bunch of asparagus, an amount that would be no more than a portion for a healthy appetite. If by "asparagus" is meant two or three sticks of the canned vegetable, that would do as a contribution to a salad. It would not contain more nutriment than an equal weight of water. Enough strawberries to give two people a respectable helping could not be purchased at this season for 50 cents.

In devising what are supposed to be cheap and yet bountiful bills of fare, there always is a tendency to forego the ordinary staples. One content to live on potatoes, or on bread and water, could live cheaply. These are the very articles held to be taboo by the theorists. Of course, also, they count all meats as poisons, although it is the exceptional person who may go mealless and thrive.

No diner ever was happy and entirely healthy who ate entirely by rigid rule. Most of the foods accessible to the hungry afford nourishment, which is the purpose of food. And more persons are killed by their dietetic fads than by partaking unperturbed of that which is set before them.

They have found a scientist over in Paris who says that smoking is beneficial. Doubtless there are many smokers who will find a grain of comfort in his theory, if they have the strength of will to make themselves believe it.

There is a man over in London who is able to bite through a steel chain one-fifth of an inch thick. Truly an extraordinary ability. But why does he do it?

Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, who came to this country as a soviet delegate and was sent back to Russia because caught trying to foment revolution here, has just been released from prison in Moscow. It seems that, arriving after deportation, he was suspected of having played the soviet false. At last he has been vindicated as to this. So the fact is demonstrated anew that in expelling Martens this country had him sized up properly.

Pomona college has purchased the botanical collection of Prof. M. E. Jones of Salt Lake. Prof. Jones is the author of "The Botany of the Great Plateau," a standard work. His collection is the most complete in existence, embracing over five million specimens minutely classified.

It is a wonder that Utah ever allowed the collection to get outside its borders. The enterprise of the western institution in procuring it is a veritable triumph.

It wasn't exactly nice for a Colusa high school teacher to elope with one of her pupils. Her age is twenty-seven, and his seventeen. A boy of those years doesn't know much, but it is not uncommon for the school teacher ten years older to be quite wise. She will be suspected of having taken advantage of the kid.

The court has fined a man $100 for selling gasoline diluted with kerosene. Doubtless the court meant well, but such leniency will be adversely criticized.

It seems that a wife at Whittier was annoyed by the fact that another woman, unmarried, was receiving the attention of the husband. What she may have said to the husband is not of record, but hunting up the woman, she smacked her soundly.

Perhaps this will restore domestic peace, although such outcome is doubtful. However, it gave the wife a chance to express her feelings, and she certainly merited this much satisfaction.

The smashing of a bootlegging ring is reported. With it seem to be smashed a number of fair reputations. Also it is hinted that a clue to a recent murder may have been found.

Such smashes do not in any instance afford a pleasing spectacle, but they are inevitable until the fact has been established even in the mind of the bootlegger that the government is bigger than he is.

England seems to be getting perturbed over the fact that France has a superior air service. Of course, this is natural. It shows the low plane upon which human intelligence still has to work. The idea that because a man has a gun he intends to murder his neighbor, is but slowly eliminated from human belief.

It was impossible to think of the sinking of the Iowa without a feeling of regret. A noble ship with a fine record in peace and in war, battered and broken it lies at the bottom of the Pacific.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Everyone says this is the young folks' age—especially the young folks. It doesn't seem to occur to a young man who staggers under the weight of a new mustache that a good deal depends on the young man—more on the young man than on the age, in fact. I could load a car with the young men who gather in front of the office building each evening. But I couldn't sell 'em.

"I had a call for a competent nurse," said Doc Henneberry last night. "In a hurry. Old Miss Curry thought she was going to die, and if she did not die she wanted some one around who was competent to talk it over with her. So I picked the nurse from the top of the list, that being the regulation imposed on me by the nurses' union, which doesn't call itself a union; and sent her up. Next day I had a telephone call from Miss Curry."

"I've fired that husky you sent up here," she said. "Silly thing! All paint and lipstick and she certainly showed through her clothes a lot. There aren't any young men up at my place. I'm just an old woman and I'm sick."

So Doc sent her two or three more nurses and they got fired, until finally the nurses' union had a serious talk with Doc. They told him he must keep his patients under control or they would not be permitted to die under the ten-dollar-a-day direction of trained nurses. Also they said he ought to know as well as they did that their nurses were not expected to cook and red up around the house and be pleasant and humor a crochety old woman.

"I'm going to get you a woman who knows her business," he told Miss Curry.

So he did—sixty years old, cheerful, confident, competent, with an age of experience behind her and courage for any emergency. Miss Curry says she's going to stay sick. She says she didn't know what a comfort sickness can be or she would have been sick before.

It's the age for young folks—when the young folks make good. It's just that sort of an age for old folks, too.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

NEEDY POLAND

[New York World]

Why is Poland "in need?" Why is she in such desperate need that she must have a military loan at a moment when French finance is strained to the breaking point? There can be only one reason. France and Poland are military allies. In case of war they are both bound to be drawn in. France, in her own critical financial position, has had to find money to arm the Poles because in the judgment of the Poincare government a new European war is now so distinct a possibility that the purchase of munitions must be begun at once.

What statesmen say at the present time is much less revealing than what they do. This military credit to Poland is a better touchstone than any premier's speech of what lies just beneath the surface of the news from Europe.

CHAUTAUQUA TO OPEN HERE ON MAY 11

A wealth of musical and entertainment features, and a lecture list that will open up many new lines of thought and observation, is indicated from the advance information just received from Ellison-White concerning the coming Chautauqua program. The dates for the Glendale Chautauqua have been definitely set for May 11 to 17.

"Turn to the Right," the greatest of all American plays, sweet, clean, wholesome and inspiring, will probably draw one of the biggest crowds of the week. It is to be produced by professional players from the studios of Elias Day, famous Chicago coach.

Two educational-entertainment features of more than ordinary worth will be the music-lecture concert by Evelyn McFarlane McClusky, which will give us all a deeper and fuller appreciation of this greatest of all arts—music; and the programs of Princess Te Ata and company, whose interpretations of Indian legends, songs and dances, bring to their audiences a truer conception of the characteristic beauty of Indian arts.

Then there is Beatrice Weller, clever chalk-talk artist; Alice Louise Shrode, child artist, who sings and whistles her way into the hearts of her auditors of all ages; and Winifred Windus, beautiful and gifted reader, who presents "Six Cylinder Love."

Heading the lecture list is "Jamie" Heron, Scotch humorist, who is said to be a composite of Harry Lauder, and "Bobbie" Burns.

St. Mark's Choir in Special Program

The choir of St. Mark's is doing amazing things. On the evening of Good Friday its vested choir under the direction of Mrs. Charles A. Parker and with Mrs. Kipp at the organ, will give Stainer's "Crucifixion." It will be assisted by the following artists: Mrs. Virginia Freeman, soprano; Mrs. A. M. Draper, contralto; W. Bernays, baritone; A. M. Draper, bass; and Charles Comfort, tenor.

He gives much of his own verse in the inimitable Scotch dialect, which helps to emphasize many points in his brilliant lecture, "Building Better Business by Building Better Men." Other prominent names found in the list of lecturers are Ng Poon Chew, Chinese editor, statesman and orator; Tom Skyehill, Australian soldier-poet, who has just returned from Europe with the greatest lecture of his career.

That the musical end of the program has not been slighted is evident with such organizations and individual artists as the following on the list: James Hamilton, lyric tenor; Charles Mitchell Mixer's Orchestra Quartet; Jay Harriner, New Zealand pianist; Leslie Taylor, Scotch violinist; and Thavius's Exposition Band, headed by the great Thavius himself.

A special event of importance has been planned for the children this year—the Magic Lunar Circus—a real circus in which every junior Chautauquan will have a part. More detailed information will be given out later. Get ready for the circus, children!

JAMES W. FOLEY

COMING BACK

"It was fast going over," he said.
"A lot of strong lads keeping step.
They went marching along
And were singing a song,
All full of excitement and pep.
"It was fast going over, I say,
Of fun and of spirit no lack,
And then I got stung,
Got some gas in my lung,
And it's just kind o' slow coming back."
"It was quickstep and hurry and run.
We were strong as young horses at play.
It was hep, hep and hep
As we all kept the step,
And we laughed the dull moments away.
It was on to the front with a cheer,
With a tin hat and gun and a pack,
Then a shell threw up dust
And a good leg went bust,
And it's just kind o' slow coming back."
"Yes, it happened a long time ago,
For the years, they go hastily past,
And perhaps there's a lot
That the folks have forgot,
And it's well that the grief doesn't last.
And I wish this bad lung would keep strong,
And I wish this old leg would keep track,
For we went on the run,
And then bang! went a gun,
Lord, it's almighty slow coming back!"

LURID FIRE SCENES IN "NINETY AND NINE" FILM

The showing of "The Ninety and Nine" at the Glendale Theatre brings to mind the famous conflagrations of history. It also illustrates the value of modern fire fighting methods. Since the San Francisco earthquake disaster in 1906 there have been no conflagrations sweeping over large districts and wiping out practically the entire city. This is partly due to fire laws and the construction of modern fireproof buildings.

Forest fires, while still prevalent, are kept under better control and seldom become so severe that they menace large towns. The most severe forest fires on record were those in Michigan and Wisconsin,

October 8 to 14, 1871, in which 2,000 lives were lost.

The great forest fire scene in "The Ninety and Nine" illustrates how severe these conflagrations are. The scene was made in an actual forest fire, and great trees burning like logs in a fireplace may be seen to fall in the path of an oncoming locomotive; burning bridges, villages and trestles, are all presented on the screen in this thrilling scene.

PROBLEMS OF THE RESURRECTION IS DISCUSSED

Dr. Robert A. Hadden preached Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church upon "The Problem of the Resurrection." He prefaced his sermon by reading the great resurrection chapter, I Corinthians 15, and defined his subject as being the resurrection of the believer in Christ.

"Gospel" has a definite meaning: That Christ died for our sin, was buried, and rose again from the dead. This is the gospel of the grace of God. This is what can save a man. His resurrection demonstrated His divinity and authority, and was the best proven fact in history. Paul in this chapter sets into place the last and best testimony, his own, as having himself, last of all, seen the resurrected Christ; and he became the greatest of all converts.

"Those early Corinthian Christians were skeptical as to general resurrection of the body, and Paul had to instruct and convince them. 'If there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen; and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain.' Bound together in indissoluble union is Christ's resurrection with our resurrection. If that be not true, then what is there to preach about? The pivotal truth of all truth is this: If He is not risen, then ye are yet in your sins; and, furthermore, the dead have perished. But now is Christ risen, and become the first-fruits of them that sleep."

"But how are the dead raised up?" Paul answered, that whatever seed be sowed, it must die first in order to reap. A mystery, but God declares it, the old body shall be brought back in the new. The dead shall rise, the old bodies changed into the new, glorious bodies. Christ rose and took that resurrection body up into heaven. The new body will be a body of power. "Spiritual" body does not at all mean an ethereal, ghost-body; it will have form and substance, flesh and bones (but not blood), as had the resurrected Christ's. Raised in immortality, changed in the twinkling of an eye. This is the truth all our faith hangs upon.

"A sleeping army lay upon the ground and were covered with new-fallen snow. The reveille sounded; all sprang up, awakened by the trumpet-call. That is what we are told will happen soon. In changed bodies we shall know each other, and see Him!"

"Therefore, be ye steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord."
